YOUR PROFILING

Personal profiling is the first step in career planning. The purpose of profiling is to understand your current stage in career planning. It helps in defining your career objectives and roadmap. The ultimate aim of this process is to move you from your current stage of career planning to an optimised stage. Personal profiling includes information about your current stage, the risks involved, and an action plan for your career development.

Current Stage of Planning

Confused

Confused: You are at the confused stage in career planning. We understand that you have some idea about career planning but are usually confused among various career options. At this stage, you are looking for proper guidance. Generally, your career decisions at this stage may be influenced by friends and parents.

Risks Involved: Wrong selection of a career path, career dissatisfaction, and mismatch with your interests.

Action Plan: Explore your strengths and weaknesses > Explore career options > Gather information > Match the most suitable option > Early execution.

RESULT OF THE CAREER PERSONALITY

The Personality Assessment will help you understand yourself better. It will help you expand your career options in alignment with your personality. Self-understanding and awareness can lead you to more appropriate and rewarding career choices. The Personality Type Model identifies four dimensions of personality. Each dimension provides a clear description of your personality. The combination of your most dominant preferences is used to create your individual personality type. The four dimensions of your personality are shown in this chart. The graph below provides information about your personality type based on your responses. Each of the four preferences is derived from your answers and is represented through a bar chart.
